

When looking at a property, it is easy to feel rushed and overlook problems or the absence of important amenities or facilities. Before signing your agreement, it is important to take time to inspect the property, read and understand the lease, and consider all aspects of your tenancy (such as costs, length etc).

Inspecting a Property Checklist

Moving into a new house can be expensive. Make sure you take into account your personal financial situation when deciding on a budget and choosing a property, to ensure that your tenancy is going to be sustainable.

The following list may assist you to consider your budget:

- Moving costs – removalist truck or transport costs, storage, temporary accommodation, taking time off work if required, any cancellation fees for services
- Rent in advance (2 weeks' rent)
- Bond – 4 weeks' rent (plus pet bond of $260 if applicable)
- Insurance
- Connection fees – electricity, gas, phone, internet
- House needs – furniture, appliances, crockery, bedding.

During a tenancy you may need to budget for:

- Rent
- Electricity
- Gas
- Phone and internet
- Water
- Travel costs (consider whether your new house is close to school, work, medical services, public transport)

Think about what type of property you want to live in and for how long.

Remember: Breaking a fixed term agreement early can be expensive.

An agent or landlord must not encourage you to pay or offer more than the listed price. If the agent or landlord asks or suggests that you offer more than the listed price, you can report them to Consumer Protection.

When inspecting a property, you may want to check:
